COLE NAGODA

Song of Lenses III

for clarinet, violoncello, and piano

PERFORMANCE NOTES

INSTRUCTIONS FOR IV. coda

CLARINET and VIOLONCELLO

quiet, sparse sounds and motions:
unpitched sounds such as air, key sounds, knocking the instrument, drawing fingers across the strings, etc.
some actions may be more visual than audible continue for a while in the final measure (fermata lunga), then fade out these instructions are intentionally left open-ended approach as one would approach a graphic score or group free improvisation this can also be workshopped with the composer: cole.nagoda@gmail.com // colenagoda.com

PIANO

the piano part in this movement is a full quotation of Kara Karaev's Prelude VII from his 24 Preludes for Piano very romantic and sentimental, like an imagined memory pedal as desired

PIANO-SPECIFIC TECHNIQUES

tam-tam effect: (x-shaped noteheads) forcefully swipe hand across the lowest strings of the piano (loud and thunderous!)

gong effect: (large parallelogram-shaped noteheads) with palm held flat, firmly pat the strings in the approximate range of the notehead plucked: (“+” over note) with fleshy part of finger, pluck the notated pitch inside the piano wind effect: (x-shaped noteheads) glissando inside piano with fingernails

The score is transposed (clarinet sounds one whole step lower than written).
